RETURNS:

The following item was RETURNED by the Laurel Office:

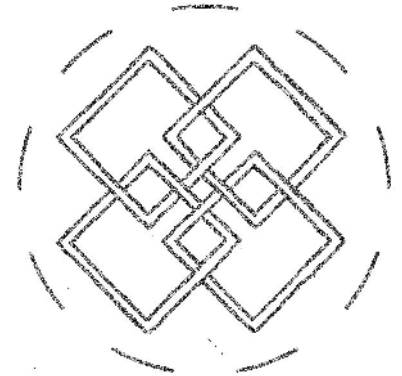

Livia Zanna. Device. Azure, a falcon and on a chief embattled argent, three roses proper. While the submitter had permission to conflict with Lynette Jaclyn Davéjean (“Azure, a dove and on a chief argent, two roses proper.”), the Laurel staff returned this for conflict with Morgan the Falconer (“Azure, a falcon displayed, belled and jessed, on a chief embattled argent three roses purple.”)

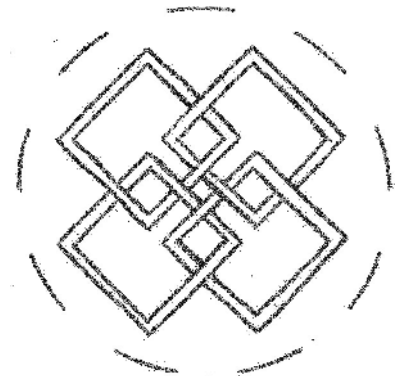

Þorsteinn sviðbalki. Device. Per bend azure and argent, a bend cotised between two thunderbolts, all counterchanged. The Laurel staff returned this device for redrawing with a wider space between the cotises and the bend and wider lines on the lightning portion of the thunderbolts: “The thunderbolts need to be redrawn so that the lightning bolts aren't a single thin line. As drawn, nothing except the ends of the argent lightning bolts are visible, giving the appearance of a pillar between four arrowheads.”

Turgeis Hakonsson and Sunniva Kyrre. Badge. (Fieldless) In saltire four mascles interlaced argent. Because they found period examples of Bowen knots drawn with squared corners, the Laurel staff returned this badge for conflict with the protected badge of Bowen (“(Tinctureless) A Bowen knot.”).

Maeve M'Encrogh. New device. Per bend inverted vert and argent, a tree eradicated counterchanged. Because of a typographical error in the tinctures of the blazon on the original Letter of Intent, the Laurel staff pended this submission until the meetings of April, 2007, for further consideration by the College of Arms. Our apologies to the submitter for not catching the typographical error in time to prevent the Laurel staff from taking this action.

Your servant,

Alisoun
