RETURNS

The following items were returned in November, 2010, for the stated reasons:

Alain de La Rochelle. Household name for The Loyal Company of Saint Anthony. The submitter indicated that he wished to retain the meaning and an unspecified language and culture (presumably English). The forms show the household name with the scribal abbreviation “St. Anthony”. Since the Society has for many years declined to register scribal abbreviations, we modified this on the Internal Letter of Intent to the expanded form “Saint Anthony”. The only documentation provided for the household name was three prior registrations within the Society which has not sufficed for registration in many years. No documentation was provided for the use of saint’s names for military companies or similar groups in England and commentary provided none, though it is possible that the Company of Saint Anthony might be registerable as a translation of one of the Continental companies with a similar name. However, the modification of the name with the adjective “Loyal” was more problematic. The most famous historical “Loyal Company” was a group established in 1749 to promote settlement by colonists in the trans-Allegheny sections of Virginia. The earliest clearly military unit using that form (“Loyal Company of Artillery”) was established in New Brunswick in Canada in 1793 in response to France’s declaration of war upon England. There is an earlier reference to one of the London guilds as the “Loyal Company of Stationers”, but that dates only to 1684 and specifically refers to events occurring following the Restoration of Charles II.

Caitilin Irruis inghean ui Riada. Device. Per pale vert and purpure, a panther rampant argent, incensed Or, spotted vert and purpure, within a bordure argent. Withdrawn by submitter

Eiríkr ulfr Þorisson. Device. Argent, a sea-wolf contourny and in chief two Thor’s hammers sable issuant flames proper. Unfortunately, the flames on the hammers do not alternate gules and Or tongues as required by Laurel precedent but have a largely gules portion adjacent to the sable hammer heads with the upper portions of the flames Or laying directly. Even if the flames were drawn correctly, they diminish the identifiability of the Thor’s hammers to an unacceptable degree.

Jamila al ‘Aquliyya. Device. Per chevron ployé argent and vert, two ravens respectant regardant sable, beaked and membered, and an annulet surmounted by a compass star Or. The charge collocation in base was blazoned on the forms as a “compass star”, but the Society-created compass star lacks the annulet seen here. In fact, the charge is halfway between a standard compass star and a compass rose, though it lacks the indication of due north that is standard on the heraldic compass rose.

Martelle von Charlottenburg and Eric von Charlottenburg.

Household name for Haus Charlottenburg. The only documentation provided for the household name was the previous registration of the submitters’ Society names more than two decades ago and there are several problems with the name as submitted. Laurel Office precedents have specifically noted that, while there was some evidence for Haus used with a place name, it appeared always to be used with a preposition and article. Changing the structure of the name is not possible since the submitters forbade major changes to the name and the addition of the prepositional element would be a major change. Apart from that, documentation is required for Charlottenburg as a period place name. Commentary noted that the Charlottenburg apparently referred to in the submitters’ registered names, was actually not founded until around 1695, well after our period. Without some evidence for a place bearing that name in period, even the form Haus zum Charlottenburg is likely not registerable under current rules, although they might appeal to the Grandfather Clause since the word is used as a place name in their registered personal names.

Sara van Eerde. Device. Per pall argent, azure and vert, a bear sejant erect Or maintaining a rose slipped and leaved proper. Unfortunately, we must return this submission for conflict with Aleksandr Belogorskov (“Per bend sinister vert and gules, a bear rampant Or.”). Since no difference is granted for the maintained rose and by Laurel precedent no difference is granted for the change in posture between a beast rampant and a beast sejant erect, there is only one difference here for the change in field.

PENDS

The following items have been pended for the stated reasons:

Atlantia, Kingdom of. Transfer of heraldic title of Padrão Herald to Pedro de Alcazar. The transfer has been pended to await the signed letter of acceptance from the recipient.

Duncan MacEwan of the Misty Marsh. Name. The submitter added a portion of the name of his home canton to clear a previous conflict. However, there was no documentation provided for Misty Marsh by itself as a place name and we were unable to find any such documentation. Given that, the name must appeal to the allowance for the use of the registered names of Society groups as part of an individual’s name, even if they cannot otherwise be documented. Unfortunately, longstanding Laurel precedent demands that such name elements be used exactly as registered in the name of the group. Since the name of the canton was registered in December, 1990, as the Canton of the Misty Marsh by the Sea, the name must be used in that form. We have pended this to ask the submitter if he is willing to use the form Duncan MacEwan of the Misty Marsh by the Sea or if he wishes to use a similar documented locative form such as atte Mershe or le Mersher.

Einarr Danskiison. Name and device. Per pale vert and argent, a bow fesswise between three sheaves of arrows inverted counterchanged. Insufficient documentation was provided for the byname Danskiison and the commenters were unable to provide any. However, we did find a documented Old Norse descriptive byname inn danski meaning “Dane” or “from Denmark” so we have pended this name to see if the submitter will accept the form Einarr inn danski which is similar in sound and meaning. Though no obvious problems were found with the device, as the name was pended the device had to be as well.

Helga Gunnarsdottir. Device. Quarterly argent and sable, in saltire five mullets of eight points counterchanged. As the submitter’s name is not in fact registered, we are pending the device until it can be matched up with a name submission currently en route to Golden Dolphin.

Katharina von Straubing. Household name for Möwen Haus. The forms note “client wants a household name that stands for “seagulls”. However, the documentation provided does not meet current Laurel standards for German household names. Current Laurel would appear to dictate the form Haus + zu + a dative noun with an article. We have discovered that the Middle High German form of the word for a gull would be mewe. Given that, the most probable period form for a house name formed from a housemark involving gulls in the plural would be something similar to Haus zu den Mewen. We have pended to this to confirm with the submitter that this form is indeed close enough in sound and meaning to what she desires.

Kieran Hunter. Badge. (Fieldless) A hound’s head erased contourny sable, breathing flames of fire proper. Current Laurel precedent requires flames of fire proper to consist of alternating tongues of gules and Or. To use this depiction of flames, they would need to be a solid tincture such as gules. We have pended this to consult with the submitter whether modifying this to solid gules flames would be acceptable to him.

Lorenzo Bragadino. Device. Per chevron azure and Or, three mullets counterchanged argent and azure. Commentary indicated that the line of division was low enough to blur the distinction between a per chevron line of division and a plain field with a point pointed, thereby triggering a Laurel return. We have therefore pended it for redrawing with a better delineated per chevron line of division.

Nadya Faa. Name and device. Per bend sinister sable and purpure, a crescent argent and a wagon wheel Or. Although the submitter indicated she really wanted the given name Nadya or Nadia, she said she would accept the Russian given name Nadezhda of which Nadya is a modern diminutive form. Since Faa is Scots and Scots and Russian may not be mixed according to Laurel precedent, we research an entirely Russian name and were able to document Nadezhda Faeva as a period form. We have pended the name to confirm with the submitter that the name Nadezhda Faeva is acceptable to her. Since the name was pended, the device had to be pended as well.

Niese Keppel. Device. Quarterly argent and purpure, two roses purpure barbed and seeded proper within a bordure embattled quarterly purpure and argent. We have pended the device to allow the bordure to be redrawn with a line of division which makes the embattlements bigger, bolder and fewer in number to meet the current standards of the College of Arms for depiction of such lines of division.

Pedro de Alcazar. Acceptance of transfer of heraldic title of Padrão Herald from the Kingdom of Atlantia. This was pended to await the arrival of the actual signed letter of acceptance from the submitter.

Theresa of Cahir. Name and device. Azure, in pale three bees between flaunches argent. The combination of the given name Theresa with an anglicized Irish byname has specifically been ruled unregistrable by Laurel. This submission has been pended awaiting a photocopy of her driver's license or other acceptable form of proof that her given name is actually Theresa which would allow her to claim the benefit of the Legal Name Allowance.

Wiglaf Sigberhting. Device. Azure, platy, on a cross alisé Or another gules. The device has been pended for redrawing with more even and identifiable cross and roundels and consultation with the submitter as to whether he really desired the cross to be gules fimbriated Or instead of the wider Or indicated by the current blazon.

Your servant,

Alisoun
